AGAIN CLAIMED COUNTY CHARTER IS INSUFFICIENT

Charged Authors Of Document Failed To Fix Salary For Office Of Treasurer Of San Mateo County.

Now, after six years and after amending and untold numbers of arguments pro and con as to its efficiency, it seems probable that our county charter may need additional amending.

It has been discussed, recently, some six years after the charter freeholders wrote the county charter, that the authors failed to fix the minimum salary that must be paid the county treasurer.

The contention that the charter sets the minimum salaries for other county officers but omits the treasurer in section 12 of article 6, prescribing salaries, was raised by Attorney Carl W. Anderson of Burlingame, representing former County Treasurer Harry E. Jenkins in the court battle over inheritance tax fees paid to that office during his last elective term under the charter.

The charter omission is noted in Anderson's opening brief on appeal from Superior Judge Cotton's recent decision in the fee case, filed this week in the San Francisco appellate court.

"Section 12 of the charter prohibits the board of supervisors from fixing salaries at less than the amounts fixed therein," he said. "It establishes the minimum for all officers except the treasurer. I cannot find his name mentioned anywhere in that section.

"As a matter of fact, there's nothing in the charter to stop the board from fixing the treasurer's salary at $1 or $50,000 a year."

The supervisors, in their county salary ordinance fixing pay of elec-

HEED PLEA FOR CONTRIBUTION OF FUND FOR CREEK

Indication Bright For Assistance In Colma Creek Flood Control By State

Favorable action toward the joint plea of the county and the city of South San Francisco for a contribution from the state flood emergency fund for clearing the Colma creek, was indicated after a delegation of county and city officials called on Governor Merriam and State Finance Director Stockburger in Sacramento.

Edward Hyatt, state engineer, will sent an assistant to survey the damage in the Colma basin caused by last winter's floods which carried thousands of cubic yards of silt into the level areas around South San Francisco. It will be followed up by a formal request from the county and city for funds. An appropriation of $10,000 probably will be sought.

Governor Merriam said funds would be available if the engineer reports favorably, members of the delegation said. Stockburger also indicated that he would approve favorable action on the request.

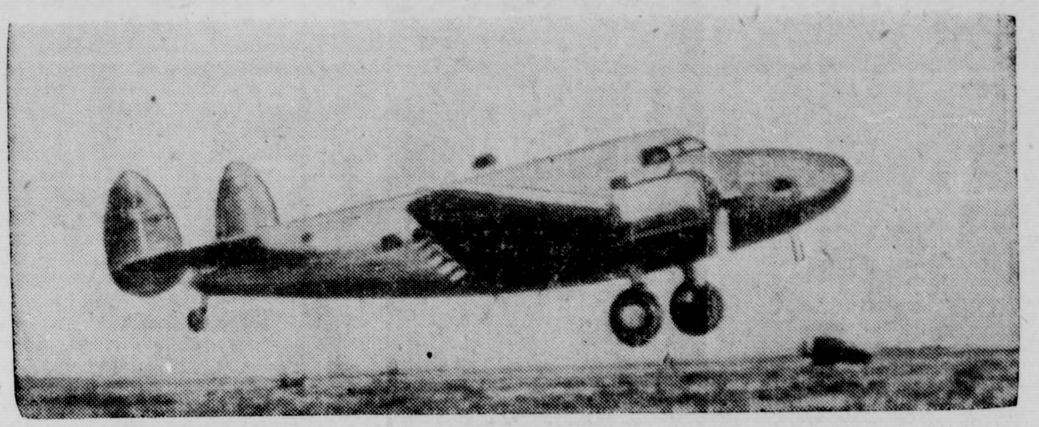
BOARD ASKED TO REDUCE AMOUNT

While city attorney John J. O'Toole looked up the law on the subject, San Francisco supervisors, this week, were pondering a request for funds to aid completion of the livestock pavilion in Visitacion Valley.

In face of the fact that he had originally asked $825,000 for a sponsor's contribution to a PWA project, Fred D. Parr, new president of Agricultural District 1A, asked the board for only $525,000, explaining that other sources would be tapped and that the lower amount would be sufficient. This amount, Parr explained, would be raised by a bond issue.

Several years ago, it was recalled by Attorney O'Toeel, the city's bond attorneys believed that such aid to the district would not be legal. This opinion and others were referred to the supervisors' finance committee for study.

HUGHES LANDS IN PARIS; CUTS LINDY'S TIME IN HALF



Streaking across the sky, Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman, recently set his huge twin-motored monoplane down at Le Bourget airport, Paris, 16 hours 35 minutes after he took off from New York, setting a new record for transatlantic flight. Hughes is the first to mak a non-stop trip from New York to Paris since Lindbergh crossed May 20, 1927. Lindbergh's time was 33 hours 29½ minutes. Photos show (at top) Hughes' plane taking off from Floyd Bennett field at New York. Lower photo shows the crew (left to right): Ed Lund, engineering mechanic; Howard Hughes; Grover Whalen, New York Fair president; Harry Connor, navigator; Richard Stoddard, radio engineer, and T. L. Thurlow, navigation aide. The flying ship was loaded with 1700 gallons of gasoline at the takeoff. This was the first leg of his world circling flight.

WANT TRAFFIC CLEARING HOUSE

Through use of the National Youth Administration personnel, the long sought "clearing house" of San Mateo County traffic violation records may be made possible. This announcement came through the chairman of the County Traffic Safety Commission, Dr. Arthur H. Nobbs of Burlingame, who was recently re-elected to the position.

The commission, he said, is working with county NYA officials in an attempt to secure funds to have the clearing house work done by young people working under the NYA.

Under the clearing house plan, all records of traffic violations would be centered at one spot, and the information would be made available to the thirteen municipal judges and five justices of the peace in the county. This system would enable the judges to penalize more severely consistant violators.

Dr. Nobbs is planning a trip to Sacramento in the near future to determine how the state highway patrol keeps its traffic violator records.

It was learned by the commission that the safety board is supporting an effort to obtain more patrolmen for the county.

SOON TO DECIDE ON NEW HANGAR

It has been announced by Congressman John J. McGrath that, in his opinion, decision as to whether or not a new dirigible will be bulit, and whether it will be built at Sunnyvale's Moffet Field, should be made within 90 days.

The proposed $3,000,000 dirigible would take 12 to 18 months for completion, according to McGrath. He said that since the Peninsula field is now controlled by the army, it would be up to Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring to decide if the hangar will be loaned to a private company for construction of the dirigible.

An appropriation of $500,000 was made by Congress for a start on the dirigible.

Want Change In Health Service

In a resolution, Monday of this week, Labor's Non Partisan League of San Mateo urged the county supervisors to appoint as director of public health a physician trained by the United States Public Health Service; to form a county health committee; to have the public health service investigate health conditions in the county, and to apply for a PWA grant to aid construction of a tuberculosis pavilion at the Community Hospital.

PUBLIC SHOWING EARLY BUILDINGS TO BE FEATURE

Twelve Replicas Of Pioneer California Structures To Be Displayed At State Fair

The first public showing of a famous collection in miniature of noted pioneer California buildings, such as the Mark Twain cabin on Jackass Hill, will occur at the California State Fair and Exposition in Sacramento September 2 through 11. .

Also in the display will be the first California public school built at Columbia in 1853, Secretary-Manager Robert Muckler said, when explaining that the collection will be placed in the Education Department at the fair.

The approximately twelve buildings and their sites reproduced in the collection o,wned by I. J. Otis, 453 Berkeley Park boulevard, are on a scale of one-half inch to the foot. Otis recently returned from New York, where he described the buildings in miniature over a radio hobby hour in a national hookup.

Never Too Old! Never Too Young!

At Athol, Mass., this week, a crowd of 2000 milled around to catch a glimpse of a wedding ceremony held at night because the bridal party couldn't take time off from their farm chores for a day service.

The contracting parties were Herbert David Boutall, 63 year old widower, and his 16 year old sweetheart, Flora Evelyn Anna May.

Screen Writer And Actress Are Wed

Delmar Davis, Hollywood scenario writer, and Mary Lou Lender of Columbus, Ohio, a screen actress, were married at St. James Episcopal Church, Hollywood, this week.

The bridesmaids were eight of Miss Lender's school chums who came to Hollywood for the ceremony.

WHY NOT STOP AND PLAY SAFE

A Case Study: B, north bound, and C, east bound, collided at a rural intersection. Each driver admitted that he saw the other, and each said that he expected the other to stop. The accident, in which there were two fatalities and one serious injury, occurred at 10:15 p. m. one day in May. There were no obstructions to the view, but it was dark and there were no street lights. The weather was clear and the road surface dry.

The police card indicated that B did not have the right-of-way. There was no arrest and no court action.

Comment: This is rather a clear-cut case. The outstanding factor appears to be the personalities of the two drivers. "Each said that he expected the other to stop." Each belonged to the dangerous class of those who believe in putting the solution of every situation up to the other man.—From "Highway Accidents, their Causes, Etc." U. S. Department of Agriculture—Bureau Public Roads publication.

Young Democrats Endorse McMurray

Assemblyman P. J. McMurray, Democrat, who is running for the Board of Equaliza ion at the August 30th primary on his own as well as the Republican and Progressive tickets, has been endorsed unanimously by the Young Democrats of San Francisco, it was announced this week.

McMurray has been endorsed by all Democratic county committees in the district in which he is running. This includes the counties of San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, San Benito, Santa Cruz, Monterey and San Luis Obispo.

SAN FRANCISCO MAY BUY MARKET STREET SYSTEMS

After a conference, this week, with E. G. Cahill, manager of public utilities, of San Francisco, Samuel Kahn, president of the Market Street Railway Lines, said he would recommend the sale of the lines to the city. He did not mention a price at which the properties would be sold.

Kahn said he could not speak authoritatively for the stockholders "but can and will make recommendations."

Cahill stated he would confer again with Kahn regarding a price for the lines.

GRANT DAMAGES FOR REMOVAL OF GOLD CONTENT

The Federal Court of Appeals of the Ninth District in San Francisco, recently, handed down a decision reversing a mining claim suit award given Walter Sakow in the court of District Judge Harry E. Pratt of Fairbanks, Alaska.

Sakow had a 20 acre placer claim called the Good Hope on Otter Creek, a tributary of the Iditarod River.

On September 25, 1934, the J. E. Riley Investment Co. threw Sakow off the claim, declaring it encroached on the Riley claims, the Blue Bird and the North Star.

Sakow filed suit in Fairbanks January 26, 1935, asking $45,000 damages for gold removed from the property by the Riley company and seeking an order of ejectment. He was granted the order of ejectment and damages of $22,500.

The Riley Investment Co., along with Harry P. Sheppard and Harry Donnelley, from whom the company had leased its claims, appealed to the Circuit Court here.

The ruling reversed the award on grounds Judge Pratt had given erroneous instruction to the jury.

POWER SERVICE BREAK DOWN CAUSES ALARM

Street cars were stalled and two hospitals and many homes in Daly City were plunged into darkness, at 11 o'clock Sunday evening of this week, by a power breakdown at Station A of the Pacific Gas & Electric Co.

Nurses made their rounds in the Villa Sanitarium and the Junipero Serra Hospital by candle light during the fifteen minute shutoff.

Street cars were affected in the Sunset, Parkside, Ingleside and Haight street areas in San Francisco and in Daly City.

The break down was caused by a heavy fog shorting insulators on a high-tension pole in San Mateo County.

Many residents of Daly City pressed candles and flash lights into service.

Stagehand Wins Empire Handicap

Earle Sande's training methods have again proved their worth. Stagehand, the Santa Anita Derby and Handicap winner, won again, Saturday of last week, after thrilling a capacity crowd at Empire City race track. The son of Sickle closed with a tremendous burst of speed in the home stretch to win the Empire City Handicap by a length.

Belair Stud's Fighting Fox, post favorite for this year's Kentucky Derby, was second and T. B. Martin's Galapas third in the field of eight starters. A photograph was necessary to determine the second horse.

FIRE DISTRICT IN BRISBANE IN LINE FOR PROBE

Irregularities And Laxity As To Keeping Of Records To Be Investigated By Grand Jury

A grand jury investigating committee headed by Wallace B. Plummer of Burlingame has sent a request to residents of Brisbane to make known to the committee any complaints they may have against the northend Brisbane Fire District, which is said to operate under one of the highest fire district tax rates in California.

Complaints that the affairs and management of the fire district in the little north end community of 2500 people have not been in accord with the state political code, were aired, Saturday of last week, at a meeting of a grand jury committee with Assistant District Attorney Daniel E. Sullivan to inspect records of the district, and, according to Plummer, found so many irregularities that further investigation was warranted.

Specifically, the charge against the district being investigated by the grand jury are these:

1. That its current tax rate of $1.[illegible] per hundred dollars for maintenance—highest rate of any fire district in the county, amounts to "almost confiscation of property" and is far in

FAST TRAVELING DOG IS TOPS AT BADEN COURSE

Rural Rebel Shows Class Seldom Reached On Greyhound Race Tracks

Rural Rebel, the sensational 22 month old racing dog, was hailed as unquestioned champion at Baden Kennel Club after making one of the most remarkable records on the books.

He is a 62 pound red son of the famous Traffic Officer, one of the immortals of the "sport of queens," and the 10 year old Rosie O'Grady, a brood bitch owned by R. C. Davis, who raised and races Rural Rebel.

The champion is an aristocrat of greyhounds. In his kennel he is aloof from the other dogs, dignified as a royal prince, serious minded and seldom playful. He is obedient and answers readily and willingly to his kennel name of "Rusty."

There were six pups in the litter, only two of which have started. Rural Rhythm, owned by Joe Arata, has just begun to run with a win, a second, and three thirds in nine starts. Two more, Rural Rhapsodie and Rural Rocket, are schooling out and will start soon. Rural Rose is to be kept at the Davis kennels as a brood bitch.

Rural Rebel has proved himself the absolute top at both the futurity and five-sixteenths mile distances. He has started nine times, winning seven. He was third once and out of the money once.

He numbers among his victims Fence Guard, owned by Ollie Ostendorf; Laddy's Honor, littermate of Arthur Duffy, kingpin at Wonderland Park at Boston; Doctor Vance, winner of the 1937 derby at Baden, and Vice Versa, victor in the Inaugural.

Favorable Report On Jury Request

The Board of Supervisors at its meeting, Tuesday of this week, adopted the recommendation of the grand jury to refuse consideration of budgets from special assessment districts unless the budget requests are accompanied by a certified audit of district accounts.

Some members contend that the grand jury recommendation, limited to revenue producing and utility districts, did not go far enough.

County Clerk W. H. Augustus was authorized to inquire of the grand jury the exact meaning of its recommendation and the number and kinds of districts which should be included in the order.

De Soto Makes Big Gain In June New Car Sales

According to official California new car registrations for the year to date, De Soto is leading all cars in the quality field. Some rather interesting deductions are made of the "official figures" for the month of June. In the forty-seven northern California counties, June showed an increase of 4.6 per cent for all dealers as a whole over May, whereas wholesale sales to dealers showed an increase of 51.5 per cent for the corresponding period. The San Francisco showrooms likewise had a substantial increase of 41.6 per cent in De Soto sales over the previous month.

De Soto and Plymouth are sold in Daly City by Donahue & Laufenberg. James Donahue, when interviewed, stated: "We are happy to say that a combination of a good car and good newspaper advertising is an unbeatable combination toward stimulating sales. We look forward, here in Daly City, to an even bigger sales record for the remaining months of this year. Naturally, we are happy to have contributed to De Soto's sales record to date."

excess of the requirements of the community.

2. That records of the various elections and other affairs of the district since its formation in 1933, are scanty or missing altogether, and that there is a serious question whether the Brisbane property owners ever authorized the district commissioners to levy a special tax for the purchase of fire equipment.

"Any objectors to the way the affairs of the Brisbane district are being run, should get in touch with me at my home, 1316 Columbus avenue, Burlingame," said Wallace B. Plummer, grand jury secertary and chairman of the committee which conferred with Sullivan. The other member are John D. Bromfield, San Mateo, and Howard Stafford, North Palo Alto.

"The fire commissioners will be called to a meeting with the jury later," Plummer declared.

Assistant District Attorney Sullivan stated that the district's tax rate "amounts to almost confiscation of property," and is a burden on Brisbane property owners, most of whom are in a class with less than moderate means.

"There is no need for the tax rate now levied on Brisbane property for fire purposes," he said. "The requirements of the community do not justify it. The fire rate is in excess of the basic county tax rate of $1.14."

This is how Brisbane's rate of $1.18 compares with other fire district rates in San Mateo County: Bayshore, 74 cents per $100; Belmont, 51 cents; Half Moon Bay, 23.8 cents; Lomita Park, 61 cents; Menlo Park, 16.9 cents; Milbrae, 36.5 cents, and Woodside, 19 cents.

Menlo fire district is said to be the largest in the state. The difference between the Menlo rate and the Brisbane rate is $1.01 per hundred. Woodside, second largest district in the county, has a tax rate near a dollar lower than Brisbane.

"Files and records of the Brisbane district are scanty," Sullivan declared.

"The fire commissioners claim that the records of the election in 1933 which authorized the formation of a district, were lost. They sought legal aid, went into court and obtained a court decree declaring the district to have been established by the electors, on the basis of the lost records."

A Free Press AND A FREE PEOPLE

THE difference between a democracy and a dictatorship is not a matter of constitution, parliaments, elections, or a liberal suffrage. Russia, Germany, Italy, and Japan have all these things. The difference lies in the right of the people to oppose their government, to express their own opinions in free speech and through a free press, to change the laws and to elect or defeat candidates for public office. In all of these things there is one essential implement. Only where there is freedom of the press can there be freedom of the people. You and your newspaper may agree or disagree over political policies, issues, or candidates . . . but in the most important civic purpose you are together. You are partners in sharing the responsibility for keeping America a land of free government and a nation of free people. The independent strength of your newspaper is your pledge that liberty shall continue in America.

ALASKAN MINES MINERAL OUTPUT IS ON INCREASE

Many Properties Which Were Formerly Abandoned Now Reopened To Production

Mines in Alaska produced minerals worth $26,989,000 in 1937, as against $23,594,000 in 1936, according to an announcement recently made by the United States Department of Interior through the Geological Survey. The total value of the mineral output of the Territory since 1880 is $749,211,000, or more than one hundred times the price paid to Russia for the entire Territory at the time of purchase in 1867.

The following table shows in summary form the mineral output of Alaska for 1937 and, for comparison, the production of the same minerals in 1936:

Value of mineral output of Alaska in 1937 and 1936

	1937	1936
Gold	$20,373,000	$18,433,000
Silver	384,000	369,000
Copper	4,741,000	3,720,000
Lead	120,400	99,500
Platinum metals	397,600	241,900
Tin, metallic	202,300	105,000
Coal	552,700	573,700
Miscellaneous mineral products, including antimony, limestone, quicksilver, etc.	218,000	51,900
	$26,989,000	$23,594,000

In all the computations of value the average selling prices for the year have been used rather than the prices actually received by the producers. Furthermore, the quantities mentioned in this statement relate to production and not to sales, shipments or some other perhaps equally significant basis by which the industry might be gaged.

The increase of nearly $3,400,000 in the value of the mineral commodities produced by Alaska mines in 1937 is of itself good indication that the industry enjoyed a prosperous year. That this high production, which has been exceeded in only four years since mining began in the Territory, was not due to any temporary cause or to a combination of favorable factors that are not likely soon to be repeated is clearly shown by the fact that none of the large mines that were operating in 1837, except certain of the copper mines, has given any indication of having nearly reached the peak of potential production. Then, too, adverse as well as favorable factors affected the industry in such ways that their combined effects, although on the whole favorable, were not so overwhelming that they made the year far from normal. Among the adverse factors may be noted the continuation of the shipping strike that began in the preceding October, lasted into the early months of 1937, and not only directly affected transportation to and from Alaska during that period but led to abandonment or postponing of some mining plans that had been in contemplation for the season; the general business uncertainty and recession, which made it difficult to start new enterprises or to make extensive commitments far ahead of restricted needs on old prospects; and the recently levied Territorial tax on all mining operations, with its especially heavy rate of three per cent on the gross production in excess of $10,000 from gold and platinum mines. The favorable factors included the general much higher selling price of the metals other than gold and silver that come from Alaska mines—some of the increase amounting to 10 to 40 per cent more than the prices for the same commodities in 1936; the general abundance of labor available and few interruptions caused by failure to settle questions of employment amicably; and the increased utilization of mechanical equipment, even at some of the smaller properties, which enabled the operators to handle much more material more cheaply and thus mine deposits that otherwise would have been unprofitable. Weather conditions, which control certain phases of mining work, such as length of season and abundance of water supplies, appear to have been normal, though varying in different parts of Alaska. Thus, in western Alaska rainfall and consequently water supplies were deficient during the early part of the open season but were good later, whereas in the eastern part of the Territory the supplies were good during most of the mining season. All the foregoing facts point to the conclusion that excellent as was the production of minerals from Alaska in 1937 it was at a rate that can be maintained or bettered in succeeding years.

The output of gold from Alaska comes from both lode (hard rock) and placer mines. In 1937 this output was distributed between these types of mines in the proportion of about 38 to 62—$7,718,000 from lodes and $12,655,000 from placers. The corresponding proportion for the entire period in which gold mining has been in progress in Alaska has been about 35 to 65. The producing gold lodes are widely distributed through the Territory, but nearly 77 per cent of the output in 1937 came from lodes in southeastern Alaska, where accessibility to deep-water routes of communication and other favorable conditions have permitted the successful mining of immense tonnages of low-grade gold ore. The other lode-gold producing districts of Alaska were the Willow Creek district, in the Cook Inlet-Susitna region; the Fairbanks district and the Nabesna district, in the Yukon region; the area near Valdez and adjacent parts of the Prince William Sound region; the Kenai Peninsula district; and the Nixon Fork district, in the Kuskokwim region. In addition to these areas prospecting for gold lodes was in progress at many other tracts in the Territory, but at none of them was any significant amount of gold ore mined except such as was taken out in the course of the exploratory work.

Hundreds of camps contributed to the output of placer gold, but those in the Yukon Basin mined the greatest amount, and those in Seward Peninsula came next. Nearly 69 per cent of the total placer production of the Territory was mined by dredges of which 41 (exclusive of one platinum-mining dredge in the Kuskokwim region) were active during 1937—38 in the Yukon Valley, 21 in Seward Peninsula, and 2 in the Kuskokwim region. Together these dredges produced gold to the value of $8,743,000. They are estimated to

WILL EXPAND TO GIVE OAKLAND FEDERAL PLAYS

The San Francisco Federal Theater is expanding its operations to the East Bay area. Negotiations for a lease on the Twelfth Street Theater in Oakland have been concluded and beginning Friday, July 15, residents of Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley and the various suburban communities adjacent will have a continuous, year-round legitimate theater without having to cross the bay.

"No More Frontier," which closed at the Alcazar in San Francisco Saturday night, will be the opening play at the Twelfth Street. It will be the policy of the executives of the theater project to move the plays from San Francisco to Oakland for two weeks. This policy also applies to the San Francisco house.

Other plays on the Federal Theater schedule which will be produced in San Francisco and then shown in Oakland will be "Excursion," by Victor Wolfson—selected by Burns Mantle, New York critic, as one of the ten best of the 1937-8 season in New York—a comedy drama; "Night Must Fall," a thrilling mystery play by Emlyn Williams; "The Milky Way," a comedy in which Harold Lloyd appeared in the screen version; "Double Door," a drama by Elizabeth MacFadden, and "See How They Run," by George Savage.

Lesson Sermon Of Christian Science

"Life" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, July 17, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself" (John 5: 26). Other Bible citations will include: "For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting" (Gal. 6: 8).

The Lesson - Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit and matter can neither coexist nor cooperate, and one can no more create the other than Truth can create error, or vice versa. In proportion as the belief disappears that life and intelligence are in or of matter, the immortal facts of being are seen, and their only idea or intelligence is in God" (p. 279).

have handled about 16,684,000 cubic yards of gravel, and the gold recovered averaged about 52.4 cents a cubic yard. The longest season reported for any of the dredges in 1937 was 266 days, for dredges of the Fairbanks Exploration Department of the United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Co. near Fairbanks, and the longest season reported for dredging in Seward Peninsula in 1937 was 185 days. Two dredges that were mining in 1936 were idle in 1937, but four new dredges were in operation in 1937.

None of the Alaska ores are now mined solely for their content of silver. As in the past, most of the silver recovered in 1937 was a minor constitituent in the copper ores. The silver recovered from these copper ores amounted to 285,000 ounces, valued at $221,000. Some silver is obtained as a byproduct from the lodes in which the principal valuable metal is gold, and some silver is also recovered from the bullion and dust produced from the gold placers. In 1937 silver to the value of about $121,000 came from the gold-lode mines and about $42,000 from the placer mines. The total output of silver (495,000 ounces) thus had a value of $384,000. The quantity of silver from both the gold-lode mines and the placers showed a marked increase. The special price paid by the government in 1937 for silver that qualified under the law as being newly mined from domestic deposits was 77.57 cents an ounce. As it appeared that all the silver from Alaska conformed to those requirements the foregoing statistics are based on that price rather than on 45 cents an ounce, which was the current selling price of silver that did not qualify.

The output of copper from Alaska mines in 1937 was 36,007,000 pounds, as contrasted with 39,267,000 pounds in 1936. However, the much higher average price for copper that prevailed in 1937 (about 3 2/3 cents a pound higher) made the total value of the lesser output in that year about $1,000,000 more than the total value of the output in 1936. The present high rate of output of copper from Alaska is apparently doomed to very drastic reduction soon. Already the managements of the principal copper mines have announced in the annual reports of their companies that the potential ore reserves at their mines are so nearly exhausted that the mines will probably be closed down by the end of 1938. This situation, serious as it is to the Alaska mineral industry, is of minor significance to the companies, as their mines outside the Territory have for many years furnished the bulk of the copper they produced. The Alaska copper production in 1937 came from large mines near Kennecott, in the Copper River region, together with smaller mines from whose ores copper is recovered as a byproduct. Among the districts whose lode mines yielded principally gold but which furnished concentrates from which copper was obtained are the Nabesna district, of the Yukon region, and the Ketchikan district, of southeastern Alaska.

The lead produced from Alaska ores in 1937 amounted to 2,004,200 pounds, which at the average selling price for the year was worth $120,400. Most of it was recovered as a byproduct in connection with the mining of gold ores in southeastern Alaska. The quantity of lead was about 112,000 pounds less than in 1936, but the average price of lead was slightly more than 6 cents a pound, or about 1.3 cents higher than in that year, so that the total value of the lesser quantity of the output in 1937 was considerably greater.

The foregoing table lists as a single item the complex group of metals known by the general term "platinum metals." Several different metals make up this group, including platinum, iridium, osmium, ruthenium and palladium. The total quantity of this composite material produced from Alaska mines in 1937 was 8131 ounces, valued at $397,600. By far the greater part of the production came from placers in the Goodnews district and a lode mine in the Kasaan Peninsula of southeastern Alaska. The mining of platinum metals in the Goodnews district showed a very great increase, which was in part brought about by the coming into production of the dredge that was built during 1937 and ran a few weeks late in the season to supplement the normal production from the dragline plants. Palladium is the principal metal of the platinum group recovered from the lode mine mentioned.

The tin ore recorded came entirely from placers, the most productive of which are in the extreme western part of the Seward Peninsula. These and other Alaska deposits in 1937 yielded more tin than during any year since tin mining started in the Territory in 1902. The tin ore recovered in 1937 is estimated to have contained 372,400 pounds of metallic tin, worth $202,300. The tin mining industry in Alaska has been increasing rapidly during the last few years but has not yet reached anywhere near the limit to which it could probably be successfully expanded.

Coal to the value of $552,700 was produced in 1937 from Alaska mines, principally in the Matanuska and Healy River fields. In quantity the output of coal was 131,600 tons, which, except for a production of 136,600 tons in 1936, is the largest amount of coal produced by Alaska mines in any year since coal mining has been in progress in the Territory. No Alaska coal was exported, but 21,930 tons was imported from the United States, chiefly from Washington, and 9626 tons from foreign countries, chiefly British Columbia, so that the total consumption of coal in Alaska in 1937 amounted to about 163,156 tons. A serious explosion in the principal producing bituminous coal mine in October resulted in suspension of operations there throughout the rest of the year. To furnish coal for the government railroad during the time this mine was closed the Alaska Railroad opened up its mine at Eska, which has been kept in a stand-by condition to meet emergencies.

Many other minerals, including such metals as manganese, arsenic, bismuth, chromium, iron, molybdenum, nickel, tungsten and zinc, and such nonmetallic minerals as asbestos, barite, clay, garnet, graphite, jade, limestone, marble, mica, stone and sulphur, have been found in Alaska. Possibly small quantities of practically all these materials were "produced" in the broadest sense of that term, but so far as shown by the records of the Geological Survey the only ones that were produced in quantities worth as much as a few hundred dollars were antimony, limestone and quicksilver. The mining and shipment of considerable antimony ore from a property in the Kantishna district in the northern foothills of the Alaska Range was one of the significant new mineral developments of the year. The principal antimony mineral in the ore is the sulphide, stibnite. The mine is some 60 miles from the railroad, so that much of the hauling of the ore is done during the winter, when conditions for transportation are especially favorable. The antimony ore credited to 1937 was mined during the winter of 1936-37. Limestone from quarries on Dall Island, in the Ketchikan district of southeastern Alaska, was shipped to the States for use as a constituent in the production of cement. Some quicksilver ore was mined in the Kuskokwim region. No petroleum was produced in Alaska in 1937, though some new drilling for oil was done on the Alaskan Peninsula in the Iniskin-Chinitna district. The marble quarries in southeastern Alaska, which have long been consistent producers of stone that is much in demand on the Pacific coast for interior trim, were temporarily inactive in 1937.

(Note: The foregoing notes are taken from a comprehensive report of the Geological Survey, entitled "Mineral Industry of Alaska in 1937," prepared by Philip S. Smith, which will form one of the series of similar reports that the Geological Survey has issued to describe the progress of Alaska mining each year since 1904.)

CONEY ISLAND EXCURSION BOAT GIVES THRILLS

Doughty Old Captain Supplies Long Felt Want In Play At Federal Theater

As gay an evening of adventure as has been seen in a San Francisco theater in many months was delivered to a packed house at the Alcazar, Monday evening, with the initial performance of the comedy drama "Excursion."

To the accompaniment of tug boat whistles, fog horns and whistling buoys the "SS Happiness" left its New York dock promptly at 8:30 for Coney Island with a full passenger list of typical Sunday Coney Island excursionists. Before its return—accompanied by a Coast Guard cutter—the audience was given a slant at more sides of life than can be found in "Grand Hotel" and "Outward Bound" combined.

It was to be the last trip of the "Happiness after thirty years of Sunday excursions with just such passengers, people whose chief and sole recreation consisted of this short voyage during the sweltering weather and whose dreams were of what lay beyond Sandy Hook. On this trip the kindly old captain, who had come to know the limited horizons of his passengers, decided to give them a taste of the real thing, a close-up at the Utopia of their dreams. He didnt put in at Coney, but continued on past the Hook and headed for a sunny little golden isle in the Carribean.

"Excursion is as fanciful and genuinely touching as any play ever staged, with many humorous and many heart melting situations and characters which were made the most of by a competent Federal Theater cast.

There will be two weeks only in San Francisco for "Excursion" and then two weeks in the Twelfth Street Theater in Oakland.

Tender Matron Stork Shower

A group of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. L. Verbrugge of Whittier street, Wednesday of this week, where they tendered Mrs. Ernest Koch of Hanover street a surprise stork shower.

The table was artistically decorated in pink and blue. A fancy adorned stork cake and a pink umbrella with streamers was the table center. The favors were miniature baby carriages.

The guest of honor received many lovely gifts for the expected stranger.

Among those present were Mesdames E. Koch, L. Verbrugge, H. McKay, L. Harris, D. Reed, F. Morehouse, E. Bolger, R. Shade, A. Ness, G. Olmstead, L. Foulkes, W. Reimer, A. Love, L. Eckhardt, E. Capella and Val Verbrugge, and Misses C. Verbrugge, Virginia Humphrey and Louise Olmsted.

The Wrong Word On The Right Side

Last year the Columbia program committee invited Dr. Angell of Yale as a speaker at one of the weekly chapels. He traveled down from New Haven entirely without a text for his speech. He got off at Grand Central and was still unprepared. He took a taxicab up to the Heights and still had no idea of what he would say. Walking up the chapel steps he quite suddenly saw a sign on the door: "Push." That would be his topic; he would speak about the value of aggressiveness in life, of gentle force in the world.

Upon the platform he began to speak: "The text for my speech is not drawn from the Bible, or from any great philosophy; rather from a sign on the chapel door naming the chief asset that a person may have." His entire audience twisted their heads and saw inscribed on that chapel door the word: "Pull."—West Point Pointer.

Hunt For Treasure

Ten miles off Norfolk, Va., the Merida, plying between the Atlantic Coast and Gulf of Mexico ports, went down after a collision with the steamer Farragut.

This disaster occured May 12, 1911, and the liner was freighted with precious metals estimated at $4,000,000, which has since been a lure for treasure seekers.

In Spezia, Italy, the steamer Pensiero is being equipepd with diving bells and soon will sail for American waters to attempt a salvage of the gold and silver cargo, which has been hidden for so many years.

Lloyd's of London, the marine underwriters, have given a concession

"Our Government Is Good Enough:" F.D.R.

President Roosevelt

Addressing a huge crowd from the platform of his special train at Pueblo, Colo., President Roosevelt declared "We don't want to copy other forms of government. Ours is good enough for us." This address was one of many given by the President while on his tour to Pacific Coast points, including San Francisco, Yosemite Valley, Los Angeles and San Diego. From San Diego Roosevelt will embark on the U. S. S. Houston for a cruise via South America to Pensocola, Florida.

Boy Scouts Have Week End Outing

A week end camping trip was enjoyed by the Boy Scouts and Sea Scouts of Troop No. 149. It was held at their regular camp grounds at La Honda last Saturday and Sunday.

The weather was warm and the water was cold, but nevertheless the boys enjoyed the swimming. There is usually a dam at the stream near their camp, but this year it was completely washed away and has not been rebuilt as yet, so all swimming was done at a place farther up stream called Cuesta La Honda.

There is a large concrete dam at this location.

Short hikes and baseball were also indulged in, all of which, the boys declare, helped to make the trip a complete success.

Octopus Attacks Cruiser In Boat

Sammy Pennington was cruising in a row boat on Santa Cruz Bay, Wednesday of this week, when behold, a giant octopus, weighing more than 50 pounds, threw its tentacles over the gunwale of the young seaman's craft, nearly upsetting it.

An exciting battle ensued, before the lad succeeded in killing the mammoth fish.

Residents Declare Water Good Enough

From Santa Cruz come reports of a peculiar situation arising there recently.

Residents of the nearby town of Ben Lomond included as part of their protest against granting a liquor license to Mrs. Bora Larson the pertinent point that her establishment is near the only water drinking fountain in town.

Wisterias Bloom In East Carolina

The earliest spring weather in years has brought out many varieties of flowers at the same time in East Carolina. All in bloom together, as a rare occurence, are azaleas, Japonicas, wistaria, iris, tulips, pansies and roses. Even strawberries have been picked for many days.

Of outstanding beauty are the huge wistaria vines at New Bern. Combined with bamboo and mistletoe on trees, it is in front of the old Blackwell house, built in 1774, where was born in 1851 the late Hannis Taylor, minister to Spain and authority on international law, and later was born his brother, Richard V. Taylor, a present member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

One wistaria vine, only about seven years old, climbs around 70 feet high, taller than the house.

Charged Authors Of Document Failed To Fix Salary For Office Of Treasurer Of San Mateo County.

tive officials for the ensuing term, set the treasurer's salary at $3900 per annum.

"The board," Anderson declared, "apparently was guided by section 4244 of the political code, fixing the salary of the treasurer in San Mateo County's class at $3900, and providing that inheritance tax fees should be paid to the state.

"The constitution provides for the office of county treasurer. When the charter left out the treasurer's salary, the board turned to general law. However, it is our contention that the charter superceded general law. Therefore, general law, is not applicable to the treasurer's situation."

Anderson also contends in the appellate court brief that the salary paid the treasurer by the county is for his services to the county only.

Judge Cotton in a recent decision upheld the charter, deciding, that under the county's organic law, the fees belonged to the state, not to the officeholder.

Whatever may be the outcome of British Foreign Secretary Eden's political career, he is not likely to be reduced to the relief roll. His father in law willed him an annuity of $25,000, while Mrs. Eden was left $750,000 in one sum.

Shirley Temple At Daly City Theater

NOW THE FARM IS STREAMLINED WITH MUSICAL

They've streamlined the old farm now!

Impossible, say you?

Not when Shirley Temple moves into the picture—and what a picture!

To begin with, a farm in general, is pretty much streamlined. Take eggs and watermelons, for instance. Nothing could be rounder, smoother and streamliner. Pears, too, follow the essential "tear-drop" design of the best principles of streamline engineering. The same holds true for nearly everything on a farm—

Except the farm itself.

So how to streamline a farm?

Well, Darryl F. Zanuck decided that the first thing to do was to make it a musical—and it's Shirley's musical best. To get the best possible music, Zanuck ordered not one team of ace songwriters . . . he put three pairs of Hollywood's best tunesmiths on the job. And added a Swing Maestro to make sure.

Then Shirley was surrounded with stars.

Next, Karl Tunberg and Don Ettlinger wrote a screen play which had vim, zip and swish in every scene and situation. Meanwhile Mack Gordon and Harry Revel; Lew Pollack and Sidney Mitchell, and Sam Pokrass and Jack Yellen wrote five song hits.

Bill Robinson invented a new dance called "Pickin' Berries." Shirley retaliated by doing his famous "stair tap dance," and completely flabbergasted Raymond Scott by singing his famous "Toy Trumpet" swing sonata.

And to cap the climax, Shirley sang a reprise of song hits from all her previous hits . . . for the fans who demanded them.

While the story was suggested by Kate Douglas Wiggins' famous book.

You'll never know the old farm when it comes to the Daly City Theater the coming Sunday.
